

About

Journal of Ceramics and Composites (JCC); an international scientific journal that aims to serve as a forum for innovative developments in the ceramic and composite based materials area. JCC published twice per year, which are during the months of February and August. JCC accepts only original Research Articles in English. All the submitted articles are reviewed by at least two reviewers. JCC follows "Single-Blind Peer Review" process for the evaluation of the articles which means the reviewers are not visible to the authors, but the reviewers know the authors' information on the manuscript file. JCC adopts an open access policy. Therefore, after completing the review process, all the accepted manuscripts are published online to provide immediate open access to their content. The journal supports to make scientific research freely available for a global exchange of knowledge. There is no article submission/processing charge. All the submitted manuscripts are evaluated by using the plagiarism detection software. After the evaluation of the similarity report, the editorial board may proceed with the submission to review or immediately decline it.